LOCAL HISTORY LECTURE –

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WATER: THE STORY OF WHY WE ARE HERE

Monday, July 2, 6:00 – 7:00 p.m.

PLD Community Room

Author Douglass Westfall discusses how Southern California gets its water and why this is important. Much of California's water flows down from the Sierra Nevada Mountains, yet a large part comes from natural underground aquifers. These make up just part of the total water system that includes reservoirs, rivers, canals and pipelines. Half of California's available water goes to agriculture, not people, as California grows more food than any other state. Yet this is only part of the story as California's population increases every ten years by some five million people, and California hasn't built any reservoirs for half a decade.

DID YOU KNOW?

Did you know you could learn breakdancing at the library?

Yes, breakdancing, and we don't mean just shaking your stuff at last week's family party, we mean real stand on your arms, and do backflips breakdancing! As part of our teen programming, this June we hosted a professional dance company to come out and teach our community teens about the B-boy and breakdancing culture. Those who participated learned about the history of the art form, watched the professionals put on a show, and received a group lesson on the basics of breakdancing. The event was a success with a number of teens feeling knowledgeable by its end about this Brooklyn dance style that has ruled the streets since the 80's.

The Vault teen program series hosts such events every other month at the Placentia Teen Center from 5:00-6:00 p.m. The purpose of Vault events is to provide teens a break from academic type programs in a safe and fun hangout space, all while informing them of, or teaching them, social skills likely not formally taught anywhere except perhaps at home. Past programs include bank credit and savings basics, age-based make up tips, how to speak to your barber, and a discussion on controversial subjects from knowledgeable guest speakers. Best of all, the library teen programs are free, just drop in!
